

Yet another form of RF pollution which at best would create more potential problems than it solves. The cost alone in building in the necessary safety upgrades to the power grid to insure the intended BPL operation is astronomical. Resources better spent bringing current power grids up to reliable standards not increasing its complexity/failure modes.